The Company continues to explore opportunities to acquire an interest in a mineral property. However, there can be no assurance that the Company will acquire a new mineral property in the near term, or at all, and that if a mineral property is acquired, it will have adequate financial resources to explore and / or develop such property. The Company's ability to continue its activities is dependent on the continued support of the Company's Chief Executive Officer (“CEO”).

The Company requires additional financing to provide for general and administrative expenses for at least the next 12 months and to acquire new projects. The Company's ability to fund the acquisition of mineral projects and subsequent exploration programs, and to meet its corporate and administrative obligations is dependent on the Company's ability to obtain additional financing, when required, through various means, including but not limited to equity financing. The ability of the Company to arrange the required financing depends in part upon the quality and potential of the mineral project being acquired and global economic and capital market conditions. There can be no assurance that the Company will be successful in its efforts to arrange additional financing on terms satisfactory to the Company and to continue as a going concern.

Risk Factors

An investment in the Company's common shares is highly speculative and subject to several risks and uncertainties. The Company has no source of operating cash flow and is dependent on the continued financial support of its CEO to cover its management and administrative expenses. The Company has no interest in a mineral property and there is no assurance that the Company will be acquiring any such interest in the short term or at all. The identification, acquisition and financing of mineral properties is a highly competitive and speculative process which even a combination of careful evaluation, experience and knowledge may not eliminate. Given the ongoing global economic uncertainties, higher inflation and volatility of the stock markets, there can be no assurance that adequate financing will be obtained in the future or that the terms of such financing, if secured, will be favorable.

Refer to the Annual MD&A for financial and other risks and uncertainties, all of which may have a material and adverse effect on the Company's business, financial condition and results of operations.
